Britain to Curb the Turk Nationalists

(A. P. Special Cable.)
Constantinople, April 28.—(Delayed.)—British troops, it is believed, plan to support the Sultan's forces in the movement against Turkish Nationalists in Asia Minor, and even join in an aggressive offensive against Mustafa Kemal. Lieut.-General Sir G. F. Milne, commander of British forces here, has gone to Imdid on an inspection tour, and elaborate preparations are being made by the British along the Anatolian coast of the Sea of Marmora, where they have occupied Mudania, the port of Bursa.

Lands Dep't Memorandum, Filed With Commission, Shows Nice Conditions

Timber Rights Disposed of Without Competition—Worth Probing, Judge Says

Toronto, April 29.—A memorandum taken from the record in the Department of Lands, Forests and Mines, showing areas within a certain territory upon which timber rights were disposed of without competition, was placed before Justice Riddell and Laidlaw yesterday just before the conclusion of the Commission's investigation into timber grants. The memorandum was filed by F. J. Niven of the department books. The memorandum shows that the right to cut timber on the same terms was granted on a total of approximately 1,000 square miles between 1914 and November 1, 1919.

The right to cut timber on the same terms was granted on a total of approximately 1,000 square miles between 1914 and November 1, 1919.

EX-PIRE RANGER IN COMPANY.
It was shown further, on Mr. Niven's testimony, that a grant of timber rights on 400 square miles in the District of Algoma to W. H. Bigwood, of Toronto, was now the property of the Hayward Lumber Co. Limited, and Mr. Niven said that he thought that two members of this company were Bigwood and Mr. Niven, the latter being, in 1919, in the employ of the Government in connection with the logging strike.

"They seem to have given away all the north country not already disposed of," said Mr. E. T. Harding, counsel for the Government in the investigation.

"There is nothing shabby about the amounts," said Mr. Justice Riddell. "They really are worth investigating."

WHY OCTOBER, 1919.
Justice Riddell then asked Mr. Niven why so many of these grants seemed to have been made about October, 1919.

Child Labor

Fix Age Limit and No More Than 48 Hours Week

Washington, April 29.—Prominent officials, both State and Federal, are marked to be victims of "May Day" bomb plots as part of a plan of industrial terrorism set for May 1, according to Attorney-General A. Mitchell Palmer to-day.

Information gathered by secret service operatives of the Department of Justice showed that a nation-wide plot was in progress by radical elements to bring about a series of industrial demonstrations marked by the lighting of bombs to high officials.

Mr. Palmer said that local police in every State had been notified to agents of the Department of Justice to give the fullest protection to those who had been marked for death by the "Reds" on May Day.

Agents of London and Tokyo, the Attorney-General said, were operating in this country to bring about an industrial riot by demonstration on May 1, as part of a more extensive plan for coincident demonstrations in France, England, and Sweden.

According to Department of Justice officials, a national of violence may be expected in the United States and other countries by radicals who plan to make May 1 an "international labor day" by demonstration against existing Governments everywhere.

The Attorney-General said that radical publications had printed and disseminated thousands of leaflets and posters in industrial districts all over the country calling upon the workers to lay down their tools on May 1. Many workers in no way identified with extremist activities had been solicited to join the demonstration.

Officials of the Department of Justice said to-day that they look for most extensive rioting in the year's bomb plots in which a number of bombs were mailed to officials in various sections in packages bearing forged letters of Gimbel Bros., department store in New York.

It was recalled that the outrage of last year culminated in the attempted kidnapping of Attorney-General's residence in this city. The man who attempted to plant the bomb was blown to atoms by premature explosion.

Men's Suits

Plain Business Suits will be the main feature on Saturday, and we have gone through our entire stock and selected the odd sizes and badly broken lots and slow selling lines priced at $22.50 to $45.00, and have decided to clear them out on Saturday at one-fifth off the old prices.

Three-fourths of these suits are grey mixtures and quiet patterns, some light and mid grey, and some dark colors. Plain models for business men and all sizes from small to large are well represented, excepting size 38.

Waterproof Coats

35.00

Since the war began in 1914, Canadian manufacturers have made great strides in the way of improvement in their product. To-day there are no makers of waterproof coats in the world who can beat the Canadian manufacturer, and this has been largely brought about by the keen competition in this line of merchandise.

This is a sample of what two big manufacturers can produce at a fair and reasonable price. Dark tweeds and rubberized cloths, with rubberized linings, made up in the young men's styles, with slash pockets and belts, and in the business men's "all-on" model. These are the most sensible kind of coat for April and May weather. Six colors to choose from, in all sizes.

No rubber. Just showerproof coats, in the newest shades. Belted models and plain "all-on" models, suitable for spring and fall days. Prices $22.50 to $35.00. Our big special line, at

Odd Trousers

The "idle rich" may wear overalls for a week or two, but the common sense man will wear his old clothes a little longer. Choose a pair of Trousers that will go with that half-worn coat and make it last another season or so—that's real economy.

One thousand pairs to choose from. Two hundred pairs specially reduced for Saturday selling.

TROUSERS 4.95

Lot No. 1 is made up of dark cotton worsteds, heavy weight, and dark grey and brown and heather mixed tweeds of pure wool and cotton that look like and will wear like whipcord; also dark grey tweeds that so many men have been looking for. These are mostly $6.00 and $7.00 values, and made with all the usual pockets and good quality linings and pocketing. Sizes 30 to 44 waist, and lengths 30 to 34. Will be adjusted to fit every buyer without charge.

TROUSERS 8.50

Lot No. 2 is mostly striped patterns to go with any color of coat. Union worsteds and tweeds and a lot of splendid brown colored lines to go with brown suits. No loose patterns or off colors, but the kind we sell at $8.50 and a lot worth more. Ninety per cent of these were made right in our own tailor shop, and that means real good workmanship. Sizes 30 to 44 waist, and alterations made free of any charge.

Big Boys' Suits

11.95

Most of these are $15.00 Suits, and good colors and materials for school wear. This season's and a few of last season's models. Norfolk coats with strap and buckle bloomers, brown, grey and dark colored tweeds. A sample display in our south window to-night. Sizes are 8 to 16 years. Nearly all our own make. The clearing price on Saturday

BIG SUITS 16.75

Exceptional values in $18.00, $20.00 and $22.50 are the prices marked on every suit months ago. These are the sizes that did not sell, and included in this lot is just one "off pattern." That means the design of the cloth is rather decided to please every eye. The bulk of these suits are quiet cloth patterns and a few brown and mid grey shades. The styles are all belted Norfolks and "waitlines" without belt. Some have slant and vertical pockets and some plain pockets. Nearly all are made by the Sanford Company, and a few of them have two pairs of bloomer knickers with the Sanford strap and buckle at the knee. The sizes run from 25 to 35, or for ages 8 to 18 years. Price to clear on Saturday

LITTLE SUITS 5.95

Junior Norfolk Suits for little boys, ages 2 to 5 years. Made in several fancy styles with fancy pockets, and some very plain Norfolk models. All have straight knickers, and only one pair with each suit. Grey tweeds, brown and blue corduroy, black and white shepherd checks. These are broken lots and odd sizes that have been in our stock long enough, and priced at $6.50, $7.50 and $8.50, to be cleared on Saturday at

Boys' and Girls' Reefers 5.95

This is a ridiculous price for a weather coat, but our customers have passed this lot up for two seasons. Everybody wants navy blue serge with a rough chevron finish and all-wool material. These are not all-wool, and only part of them are blue serge, smooth finish. Others are grey and brownish colored tweeds. The small sizes have brass buttons and emblem on the sleeve. The large sizes have black buttons, and all sizes from ages 8 to 16—boys' or girls'—to be cleared Saturday at

$5.95

German Loss of Iron Ore is Hurting.

(A. P. Special Cable.)
Berlin, April 29.—(Delayed.)—The invitation extended by the Supreme Council to the German Government to send representatives to the conference is viewed by German officials as a signal for the German Government to improve in Germany's diplomatic position, "Germany thereby being delivered from the shackles of its enforced isolation."
The co-operation of Germany, France and Belgium will form the nucleus of a new active policy to work out a European confederation. The semi-official Allgem. Zeitung, discussing the destruction of war material under the treaty, in state arsenals and about 25,000 private workshops, expresses the hope that the Germans may relax their demands for the surrender of all remaining waste metal, which now constitutes virtually the sole raw material for keeping the iron and steel foundries in operation, since the supplies of ore from Lorraine, Luxembourg and other places have ceased.

Madame could not speak English, and the conductor could not speak French, and she claimed that she did not understand him. The conductor wanted Judge Cusson said that, while he could not make a crime of the fact that the conductor only spoke one language, it was very unfortunate that such incidents should arise because two persons living in the same country could not understand one another. He concluded by declaring that bilingualism was a fault of which both parties should try to cure themselves at the earliest opportunity.

THAT PAUPER FROM AMERICA

She blushed deeply, and the long lashes drooped over her cheeks, but she answered, firmly:

"It would be very cruel for me to let you keep on hoping like that, Lieutenant De Vere. I could never be yours if you waited months and years. I will tell you the truth. There is—"

"A moment's delay, please. The girl drops her ashamed face in her hands. Presently she says huskily, yet with steady courage:

"It is some fortunate error you have left in America. Let me congratulate you. I am not any happier than you are. It is some fortune that I have met you."

"Does not love me? Then he must be a stock of a stone," De Vere said, indignantly.

"He is neither," says Lenora, with the pretty promise smile she has worn throughout her interview. "But let me speak no more of it. I should not have confessed to you only to show you how futile it would be for you to go on loving me. I thought it better for you to forget me. It may make it easier for you to forget me."

"I shall never do that," he answers, with conviction.

"You think so now, but time will change you," smiling. "I shall be gone out of your life forever in a few days. You will not see me again."

"Gone?" she echoes, blankly.

"Yes, I am going away in three weeks time. And that West coast with me to America."

"Yes, it is possible."

"Yes, you are going to seek a home, your own land. Did you not say so, Lieutenant De Vere. You are the only friend I have made in this country. If I may call you my friend, I will."

"I will," she says, with a great sigh of disappointment, regret and pain, and then she looks at him with a smile.

"Yes, I am your friend, if I can't be your lover," he said, musingly.

"What not come home yet?" said the former, in surprise, and Lansdowne flushed guiltily.

"No, when did you come to London?" he inquired.

"Several days ago," De Vere replied, cautiously, and scanning his friend carefully. Lansdowne does not look smiling. He is a tall and haggard-looking. There is no color in his sunken cheeks, and his eyes are heavy and restless.

HOT WORDS OVER SANDY BILL IN LEGISLATURE

Bill to Stop Short-Circuiting Given Its Second Reading.

SOME CLASHES

Raney and Dewar Wrangle—Premier Drury Intervenes.

Toronto, April 29.—Another step toward "bone-dry" legislation for Ontario was taken in the Legislature yesterday, when the "Sandy Bill," which would stop "short-circuiting" within the province, was given second reading. The bill would prohibit the delivery of liquor in Ontario from distilleries or breweries in Ontario upon orders mailed to Montreal and returned to the Ontario producers.

Mr. W. E. Raney gave an explanation of the bill and defended it against criticism from Charles McCrae, Conservative member for Sudbury, and H. J. Dewar, Liberal leader.

With the latter much was said in a few arguments. Premier Drury himself gave a clear view of the purpose of the bill, and added to the defense by Mr. McCrae.

UNOCCURRED ENACTMENT. Mr. McCrae thought the bill should come into effect immediately, and argued that, as worded at present, it would prevent anyone from having liquor in his cellar. If it was put into force immediately, he said, it would bring about a practically "bone-dry" condition. The people having had that experience would know what they were voting for on the referendum.

Premier Drury replied that before the lifting of the ban on importation he had no jurisdiction. It was his duty to bring about a practically "bone-dry" condition. The people having had that experience would know what they were voting for on the referendum.

Mr. McCrae thought the bill should come into effect immediately, and argued that, as worded at present, it would prevent anyone from having liquor in his cellar. If it was put into force immediately, he said, it would bring about a practically "bone-dry" condition. The people having had that experience would know what they were voting for on the referendum.

pooling in the case of the Sandy Bill he had been offered by Mr. Howell in the days of the Healey Government.

The principle of his bill, he said, was incorporated in the O. T. A. It was only to be expected, he argued, that if the people did not want liquor sold in Ontario they would not want it procurable by any circuitous method. He admitted that "bone-dry" prohibition was going to work hardship on many citizens who had without about the right of drinking liquor as a beverage. His thought, perhaps, was not going too far to say that it was going to work hardship on certain classes. But all advanced legislation had been brought about through some persons making sacrifices.

Concerning the desire of the numbers of foreigners who might be contemplating coming into Canada, he said it would be wiser to legislate for "bone-dry" prohibition now, and then require them to live up to the ideals of Canadian citizenship.

FIVE HUNDRED AND NINTH CHAPTER

ORRIS AND JORDAN SPENCE HAVE SOME DIFFERENCES ON THIS SPIRIT WORLD.

Katherine Miller's wish that her child might inherit its father's portion of the Lorimer millions was interesting, of course, but the Lorimers did not require it for their guidance. When Mrs. Spence thought about it as an admonition made by Benjie's spirit she forgot that Mother Lorimer had already instructed our lawyers, friend, Martha Palmer, to make out the proper papers for the settlement of a great sum of money on Baby Babe. Mother and Daddy had agreed about it months since. Now that there was some question that Daddy might never come home Mother took the matter seriously.

Concerning Baby Babe she said:

"Of course our Orris has married, the child is of the Lorimer blood quite as much as any child of Bob's or Jim's or Chrys can ever be."

Mother had said this with her arm around me, as if she did not wish to hurt me. But you can't be reminded that I had not replied an heir for the Lorimer fortune. That fact came up every day of my life. Chrys referred to it more than once, and suggested that I look into the future, through the vision of some spirit control. I objected strenuously; in fact, the family was getting pretty tired of the séance habit. We had so much on our minds that there was no time for the next few weeks that we rejoiced when Chrys announced that her agents had found at last a nice tight little yacht. It was a San Francisco harbor, and she and Katherine Miller would stay west at once.

Of course our Chrys has picked the finest thing of its class. Bob announced when he heard the name of the yacht. "The Blue Bird" was built for a western lumber king. She has made a dash between San Francisco and Honolulu. Chrys realized that she was undertaking that voyage partly for the sake of concealing her heartache. Her affairs certainly moved pretty rapidly after she had had a certain lengthy interview with Jordan Spence. Of course no one could get the details of that interview here, but there must have been something pretty awful, I should say. At any rate, Jordan Spence, who is the most polite of men, fairly rushed from the house. He had to write Mother a little note the next day. And Chrys went straight to bed after that talk with her lover, who she said had probably Chrys's touch of the flu and she would like to be left entirely to herself, and the ministrations of her maid.

At the end of three days she came forth from her chamber looking like a girl who had never spoken of love. She spoke of love and of course no one else dared to do so.

"If she insists on wrecking her happiness on her silly belief in spiritism nobody can save her," said Bob. "But I wish Spence had thrown her outboard door of the window before he left."

"I've read of unhappy lovers who came to grief at account of their religious differences, but never before have I heard of a romance being shattered by this for the sake of a few ghosts, man or less."

Chrys is honest, at least," said her twin. "A lot of girls think a husband will stand for any kind of silly business after the wedding. They do not play fair. Some of them intend to sit down and wish their way through life—which means that the husband has got to hustle some. But you can't be reminded that the lady kind never give up their system—until they have the man tied tight."

"Poor Chrys will certainly pay dearly for her honesty. May be a trip around the world will cure her heartache."

Chrys had a big adventure, of course, for, of course, for two girls to cruise around just as two men would do. But the dangers dwindle—only don't tell Chrys so—the dangers shrink quite a little bit when you remember that we can keep in touch with Chrys by wireless messages. And she has a model and a good deal of her "lost" herself on the seven seas, you know. If she could, I'd certainly object to her little project for rescuing her father."
